Memorable Moments in Diocesan History

In the years immediately before and after the Second Vatican Council, Bishop Russell made the Richmond Diocese one of the first ecumenically engaged dioceses in America. In January 1962, he established what was just the second diocesan ecumenical commission in the U.S.A. In January 1963, he crossed denominational lines to speak at the Virginia Episcopal Church's annual assembly. And in June 1965, he became the first American bishop to issue guidelines for Catholics engaging in ecumenical dialogue and shared endeavors with other faiths.
